Governor Ferguson So Declared at Rockport Friday—Situation Much Improved.

[By Associated Press.]
Rockport, Tex., Aug. 14.—Conditions in Cameron, Hidalgo and Starr Counties have improved to such an extent that the Texas National Guard will not be sent into that section, according to Governor James E. Ferguson. The Governor is spending his summer vacation on the gulf coast here.

Governor Ferguson conferred Friday with Congressman John N. Garner, Adjutant General Henry Hutchins, County Judge Yates of Cameron County and A. W. Gill and Caesar Kleberg, the latter being manager of the Norrials ranch, which was attacked by Mexican outlaws last Sunday. It is said he was told that armed Mexican bands have been crossing the Rio Grande into Texas, but that Texas rangers, county peace officers and the United States border patrol have scattered them, and that the situation is now well in hand.

Congressman Garner and Adjutant General Hutchins left here last night for San Antonio, where they will confer with Major General Funston. It is said they will ask General Funston to send additional troops into the lower Rio Grande valley to protect that section from further raids from across the Rio Grande.
